Noodle Cooking Instructions

Unless otherwise noted, follow these simple steps:

1. Open the lid halfway and remove any packets.
2. Open and add any powdered soup and/or garnish packets (dried veggies, etc.) to the noodles before you add hot water.
3. Add hot water to the line, cover, and let it sit for a few minutes (see item description for times).
4. Then, add any liquid soup, and/or oil packets, and mix well.
5. Add your own toppings too if you'd like. Fresh veggies, boiled egg, or even cheese!

How to cook Yakisoba

1. Open lid halfway and remove all packets from the container.
2. Add hot water to the line, press the lid back into place, and wait for the allotted cooking time.
3. Drain all the water using the strainer on the lid. BE CAREFUL.
4. Remove the lid and mix in the flavor packets and stir it up nicely. Then add any toppings you want, and eat!

山本製粉 ポンポコラーメン

Cooking Time: 3 minutes

Pompoko Ramen from Yamamoto Seifun

Allergens: Wheat, Dairy, Pork, Chicken, Mackerel, Soy, Sesame and Gelatin
Processed in a facility that uses Buckwheat and Egg.

Picture this: you're driving a classic Nissan Skyline along the No. 247 Kozakai Bypass toward the Toyokawa Interchange. Outside, the sun is setting, and you see the Yamamoto Flour Milling building to your right. That was, since 1964, the base for the local ramen loved by the people of Toyokawa and Japan is made.

Pompoko ramen is a delight for your senses. The noodles are homemade in Aichi prefecture, and come in a slightly curled shape, so that it rolls itself smoothly around your tongue, giving you time to enjoy the lovely texture.

These shoyu (しょう油) ramen noodles are slightly darker than usual soy sauce based ramen, because the taste is even richer. Itadakimasu!

日清 UFO 45周年最種どろっと特濃ソース

Cooking Time: 5 minutes

UFO 45th Anniversary Saigoku Dorotto Tokuno Sauce from Nissin

Allergens: Wheat, Dairy, Pork, Chicken, Soy, Apple and Gelatin
Processed in a facility that uses Buckwheat and Egg.

The thickest sauce ever! U.F.O.'s best ever extra thick sauce with onion (ねぎ) and garlic (ニンニク) crushed in it, with chunky extra thick noodles developed just for this anniversary edition are too good to be true!

This is the second collaboration product between Donbei and UFO to commemorate their 45th anniversary! 45 years of UFO noodles, and we're cheering to 45 more to come!

Did you know that back in 1994, they did a UFO video game for the Famicom console? UFO Kamen Yakisoban: Kettler no Kuroi Inbō (UFO 仮面ヤキソバン 黒い陰謀, UFO Mask Yakisoban: Kettler's Dark Conspiracy) was a Japan-exclusive beat 'em up video game for the Super Famicom. From noodles to superheroes, saving the world, and still saving us today with their explosive and savory flavors.

おやつカンパニー 鬼滅の刃ベビースターチキン味シール付

Kimetsu no Yaiba Baby Star Chicken flavor with a Sticker from Oyatsu

Allergens: Wheat, Soy, Chicken, Gelatin and Pork
Processed in a facility that uses Shrimp, Crab, Buckwheat, Egg, Dairy and Peanuts.

Japan loves collaborations, and so do we. We got our hands on this special one between Baby Star and the popular TV anime Kimetsu no Yaiba!

Season two is already on Netflix, how far have you watched it? Of course we all love Sanjiro, but who's your favorite hero in the story?

This snack comes with the familiar chicken flavor from Baby Star and a bonus character sticker from Demon Slayer (Kimetsu no Yaiba). There are a total of 12 types of collectible stickers limited to Baby Star, including a limited edition mini character design! Which one did you get?

森永 大玉チョコボール Theピーナッツ

Oodama Chocoball The Peanuts from Morinaga

Allergens: Wheat, Soy, Dairy and Peanuts.
Processed in a facility that uses Egg.

A bite-sized chocolate ball packed with multiple flavors and textures that makes the character Kyoro-chan (キョロちゃん) come alive. These cartoon birds came to life in 1967 and have become the mascot of Morinaga's Chocoballs.

These large peanuts are covered in crisp layers, coated with plenty of chocolate. Since it is 2.5 times the normal size, even one single chocoball will leave you satisfied for a while. Some of them also include a golden chocolate ball, making you a lucky winner!

山芳ポテト北海道リッチバター味

Potato Hokkaido Rich Butter Flavour from Yamayoshi

Allergens: Wheat, Dairy, Sesame and Soy.
Processed in a facility that uses Shrimp, Crab and Egg.

Hokkaido, the northernmost large island of Japan is famous for its beautiful landscapes, mountains, and spacious farm land. These potato chips express the original pure taste of butter as Japanese people know it.

Using butter from Hokkaido, the chips are finished with a high-quality and flavorful taste. It is a taste that you will not get tired of eating until the last bite. Simple chips are today the most savory, do you agree?

やおきん餅チョコアーモンド

Mochichoko Almond from Yaokin

Allergens: Dairy, Wheat and Soy.
Processed in a facility that uses Peanuts.

Mochi, chocolate, and almond? A dream combination for a unique snack. Yaokin (やおきん) delivers a new treat, once again, to diversify from being the national and international Umaibo (うまい棒) manufacturer, Yaokin is really producing some of the best snacks available on the market right now.

There is only one piece in this package, so take your time while tasting it, or get yourself an extra pack quickly before they run out!

リスカ日本ーながいチョコ

Nagai Choco from Riska Nihonichi

Allergens: Dairy, Peanuts, Wheat, Egg and Soy.
Processed in a facility that uses Peanuts.

Nagai (長い, ながい), means long in Japanese. And indeed, Riska (リスカ) released the longest chocolate corn snack in Japan. But, is this also the best corn snack in Japan?

Can it compete with the almighty Umaibo, the prince, king and emperor of puffed corn snacks? We'll let you decide.

丸川製菓チョコちゃんガム

Chico-chan Gum from Marukawa Seika

Be ready for this one. Chico-chan is not someone you want to mess with! She's a 5-year-old girl who scolds adults for not knowing the answers to simple but perplexing questions about life.

In Japan, she made it to television on the television channel NHK and their variety quiz program "Chiko-chan ni shikarareru!" (Chiko-chan will scold you), titled "Don't Sleep through Life!" in English.

The gum comes with cider taste, because it's also time to celebrate the end of the year!
